Unleashing Sustainable Change & Transformation Through Ecosystem Leadership

In the current climate of economic, social and environmental challenges, leaders are tasked to take on a proactive role in navigating and spearheading initiatives into these uncharted areas. The increasing difficulty in solving these challenges has unveiled significant gaps in skills necessary to lead impactful innovation and systemic transformations in business, society and the environment.

The rise of social entrepreneurship and social enterprises has played an increasingly significant role in alleviating challenges through social impact while seeking financial sustainability. In Singapore, an ecosystem had developed around social enterprises that indicates a heightened interest from corporations, intermediaries, academics, government, public and social service agencies. Through raiSE's efforts as an ecosystem champion and developer, we have recognised the need for leaders who can operate effectively and be successful in creating meaningful impact. The aim is to raise a new type of ecosystem leader that has a social entrepreneurial mindset, eco-centric leadership skills and behaviours as well as networks for tri-sector collaboration to create change and transformation.

Hence, this programme aims to equip emerging and existing leaders from the private-public-people sectors with the necessary skills to cultivate them as advocates and supporters of the social enterprise ecosystem, and to inspire them to take greater initiative in the sector.

Programme Highlights

- Experiential learning focused on change & transformative leadership
- Strong focus on scalable and adaptive eco-centric leadership skills and behaviours
- Innovative and interactive delivery of modules
- Hands-on project-based experiences that harness theory into practice
- Connections to the social enterprise ecosystem and network of resources in Singapore

About the Programme

This bespoke signature leadership programme aims to:

- Equip emerging leaders from the public, private and people sectors for the social enterprise ecosystem with new leadership skillsets. Moving away from ego-centric skills and antiquated leadership behaviours to make way for a fresh set of eco-centric ones, where personal and other-centred leadership models are being reimaged and practiced.
- Inspire them to take greater initiative in innovating and implementing ideas through collective intelligence, ecosystem collaboration and leadership mastery through a social entrepreneurial mindset.

Programme Objectives

To support emerging leaders in implementing change and transformation initiatives within the social enterprise ecosystem by:

- Developing skillsets for strategic clarity, effective execution of initiatives, and tri-sector collaborative leadership
- Instilling a culture of diversity and innovation
- Creating a support network of like-minded leaders in their journey of change and transformation

Who Should Attend

This programme is ideal for:

- Social entrepreneurs
- Key managers and representatives from government agencies working with social enterprises, businesses or communities
- Community leaders spearheading social innovation and social enterprise programmes.
- Socially responsible business founders and key managers
- Corporate leaders in strategy, marketing, human resources and sustainability tasked with championing sustainable business practices and community development from within an organisation

“ raiSE aims to be the driving force behind inspiring a generation of recognised leaders who not only possess impactful ideas but command influence in the social enterprise ecosystem in Singapore and beyond. ”

Alfie Othman
CEO, raiSE
